Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 28 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Llow cloud and some fog eastern and central areas tonight.

This Evening and Tonight:
Starting fine and clear, with the temperatures falling away to allow a frost for many western and northern parts, with a few patches of freezing fog developing. Increasing low cloud, mist and patchy fog across eastern and southern areas.

Monday:
Fog and low cloud slow to lift, persisting across some central and eastern parts of England, where cold. Else, early fog lifting to allow spells of sunshine.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Mainly settled although often rather cloudy with some overnight mist and fog. Showery rain across south and central areas on Wednesday. Light winds. Rather cold in north, mild in south.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.